GENERATION I.

EDWARD BOBIT, an immigrant from Wales. He settled in Taunton in 1643 or thereabouts. He married, Sept. 7, 1654, Sarah Tarpe, daughter of Miles Tarpe of Boston. They settled in that part of Taunton called Berkley. Edward was killed by the Indians in 1676. In relation to his death the following tradition is told: "Hearing that the savages might burn his home and kill his family, he moved them to Taunton, a village about seven miles distant, where they remained for some time. One day, taking his dog with him, he went to his home to get some article, a cheese hoop the story says, and had started to return when he became aware that some Indians were following him. He climbed a tree whose branches completely hid him and the Indians passed without seeing him, but his dog began to bark and the Indians came back, found him and shot him in the tree." Edward was one of the original purchasers of the part of Taunton which became Norton and all the Babbitts are supposed to be his descendants. He left nine children of whom the youngest was Deliverance, born Dec. 15, 1673. The oldest child was:
